MISSOURI FINANCES.—It appears by the Auditor's Report, submitted to the State Convention on Monday, that the whole amount of Defence Warrants issued for the payment of the Missouri Militia is $720,000. In all the counties, where the revenue has been collected, these Warrants have been paid to Sheriffs for taxes. For the purpose of appreciating them to par, the Auditor recommends that they be made receivable, also, for the taxes of 1863, and receivable from late Collectors who are in default for the taxes of 1860. The Auditor reports that out of the 114 counties in the State, only 41 have receipted for the tax books of 1861; and the taxes collected in these death. counties are only $253,386. To this must be added and Dram Shop Licenses ($23,294) collected in St. Louis county; and Insurance Agency Licenses ($2,744) collected in the same county—making a ($2,744) collected in the same county—making a concerned, was all Hebrew to see the peligious ceremony of "washing the feet." VAN DORN AND THE REBELS AT MEMPHIS.

[Extract from letter dated Memphis, April 20, 1862.]

* * * All of our horses have been taken from us; I could not help crying as I parted with mine. We are now stationed about a mile and a half from Memphis, and are undoubtedly pressed into the service for two years longer. You never saw so many down-hearted soldiers in your life. They took our horses without our having any say in the matter. The supposition is that we are under Gen. Prics. We have been under that infernal Van Dorn long enough. He has an awful name here. All the Tex in troops have concentrated here, and soldiers are as thick as blackberries. They have enough commissary stores at Memphis for one hundred thourand men. like that of M'Gregor, was that the heather on which he trod alone might bloom over him dead. He did what he felt was his duty, but he felt disconsolate, heart-broken, unhappy. He would rather die than lead a life made of such dark and dreary and bitter years as the one through which he had just passed. He had seen young men, the hope and flower of the State, discemited, wandering hither and thither, scattered now from the prisons along the Northern lakes to the marshes and cansbrakes in the interior of Mississippi. He would not go into a discussion of this controversy or its causes. Whether the North was right, or the South, or whether both were wrong, it was not his purpose to argue. He wished only to say that in his deliberate and settled judgment, taking all the facts as they now present themselves into consideration, he was bound to declare that this rebellion was played out—it was an utter failure. He had ties the dearest in nature to the Southern side. His only brother was a prisoner, and his two only brother was a prisoner, and his two sons were in the Southern army, and to-day he would give his right arm to bring them back. He never asked them to go there. them back. He never asked them to go there. They went against his judgment. It was his solemn duty to tell his old friends that the Confederate cause was ruined and hopelessly lost. He never had been despending man, but for monthshe had feit no faith in the rebellicn. He had not scrupted to say so to all his friends. The longer it lasts, the worse it will be for the South. He had the satisfaction of knowing that he never asked a man to vote the secession ticket. All he did say was that if Tennessee voted herself out of the Union she could take him with her, but she could not make him vote for secession. But leaving this he would address the very fiercest and most rabid secessionist alive—he would suppose most rabid secessionist alive—he would suppose what was not so, that the crowd before him were such fierce fire-eaters that they literally ate and sparkled fire—and then he would ask them, as mea of sense, if they were not compelled to reas med of sense, if they were not compelled to re-linquish all heps of resisting the Federal Govern-ment successfully? Let us look at these things without false pride. Here we have 22,000,000 of white people against a little over 6,000,000, with 4,000,000 of slaves. The 22,000,000 have the whole power of a long established govern-ment—the revenues, the navy, the military pow-er, the markets and commerce of the world, wealth and manufactures, with an amazing in-crease of active and enterprising population. The rease of active and enterprising population. The six millions have no commerce, no manufactures, no navy, no immigration, no munitions of war. Here is a simple problem of numerical strength. The North and the South are equally brave. No Northern man can whip three Southerners; no Southern man can whip three Northerners. no Southern man can whip three Northern

All men of sense know this to be the fact. Now he did not for a long time believe that this trouble would end in war. He thought when Tennessee was arming herself that the storm would blow over. He did not even think there would be a war after the battle of Manassas, for he looked on that as a bloody fray brought on by accident rather than as a pitched battle. It proved noth-ing. But he was mistaken. We have war, and oats, nor navy. Some professed to be humiliated at this. Some say you will rather die than give t up. Well, he had scanned this audience carefully, and they didn't look much like men who thought of dying. They were here enjoying themselves, and buying and seiling, eating and drinking. The Confederates seized the strongholds of Kentucky, and after having fortified them strongly were driven cut. Maryland was fully under the Federal power. A large part of Virginia was under the same control, and the Federal troops were still advancing and the Confederates falling back towards the South. EVENTS AT AND NEAR CORINTH. - Undoubtedly a good deal of disappointment was felt by many of our friends when they learned that, in far off plains of Buena Vista that told the fate spite of all the precautions taken by Gen. Hal- of a beloved son, the Sage of Ashland was leck, the rebel army had escaped from Corinth. The escape, to be sure, was regarded as con- sympathies of sorrowing friends, while the clusive evidence that the rebel forces were in knowledge that his child had died the death such a condition of demoralization that their of a patriot brought consolation to his aged leaders, even with all the advantages of their heart. In the far off "undiscovered country", immense fortifications, did not dare to risk a battle, man for man, yet still much regret was grandson, a martyr to the holiest cause in felt that Gen. Halleck had not been able to which man has ever drawn a sword, force either a general engagement or a general how will his spirit cling to the golden memory surrender, thus ending the war in that section | that another of his descendants has vindicated by a single overwhelming blow. The simple evacuation and retreat did not by any means life. Glorious grandsire, chivalric son and satisfy loyal expectations.

But better news, inspiriting news, has since come from that quarter. Great and important | Let us thank God that amid treachery and sults have been achieved in the pursuit of the deceit and madness there has been no speck fleeing forces of the enemy. Gen. Pope, at the upon that loved name, and that Kentucky and head of 40,000 men, was in full pursuit at the the world can still speak it with pride and last dates, reporting already 10,000 prisoners and deserters, 15,000 stand of arms, nine loco motives and several trains captured, while thousands of the rebels were throwing away their weapons, and Beauregard in his despair was bidding his men save themselves in whatever way they could. The demoralization was complete, and we may expect to hear of the on the 28th ult., Mr. Colyer, the Superintendcapture of thousands of additional prisoners, stands of arms, &c., if not the surrender of the bulk of the rebel army. At any rate that army, we are confident, will never be able to rally and present a formidable front again. Beauregard's day is past. He has put forth all his exertions, and failed wretchedly. For him, there is no future.

It seems to us that the rebellion has in this case sustained a blow from which it can no more recover than a man could recover from the full stroke of a thunderbolt.

The News and Reformer, a violent little sheet published at Watertown in New York, pays its respects to the Louisville Journal as such schools. As a man, he would perhaps

THE "IRREPRESSIBLE CONFLICT."-The Lou-The "IRREPRESSIBLE CONFLICT."—The Lon-isville Journal, it seems, disapproves of the ad-dress which was adopted by the Republican and Union Democratic members of the New York Legislature, and which was published in this pa-per a few weeks since. This is not strange. The Journal, while it has been steadily opposed to secession, has been one of the strongest advocates of Southern institutions and Southern rights in all the Southwest. It is as fanatical upon the slavery question as the Boston Liberator, the only difference between the two papers being that only difference between the two papers being that the former is for slavery and the latter against it. Of course the Journal holds that people who are against slavery, and so avow themselves, are "sectional," while those who sustain the institution are "national." The active "national" men are, therefore, pretty much all found South, and we must submit to their lead, and allow them to control the policy of the country in order to be es-teemed friends or the Union and loyal citizens. To be in favor of "Liberty and Union" seems no onger possible. People who are not openly or se-pretly in favor of slavery are "sectional" in their views, and no better than the secessionists. This appears to be the position the Journal tion prejudice, and not very perspicacious at best, but to no others. At all events it is not the position the Journal maintains, and, bigoted and blockish as the Watertown sheet is, we can hardly doubt that it knows as much. We of course do not hold that people who are opposed to slavery are necessarily sectional. By no manner of means. If we did we should hold also that the solid North is sectional, that, in other words, all national feeling is extinct in the Northern people, for unionably they as a body are opposed to slavery. But we hold no such position in any of its aspects. The position is an absurdity of Gen. McClellan's sister, had gone up to both theoretical and practical.

There are in the North, however, two kinds of opposition to slavery, very distinct in their character and manifestations. The one is purely an opposition of opinion and of sentiment, manifesting itself in a quiet tablished institutions of the North, but proposing no interference whatever with the contrary and most natural preference of the people of the South, recognizing, on the other and, the preference of each under the constitution as sacred from the disturbance of the other, and disdaining to attempt by indirect means what the constitution prohibits by direct ones. The other is an opposition of purpose, manifesting itself in the resolution through a systematic course of agitation and of administration to modify and control the free choice of the Southern people in respect to their domestic affairs, wielding the powers of the common government against the rights and interests of a part, in defiance alike of the letter and of the spirit of the constitution. The one is a thoroughly constitutional opposition, entirely consistent with the peace and perpetuity of the Union; the other is an unconstitutional opposition, inconsistent with the peace and perpetuity of the Union.

Now, the people of the North who join in the latter kind of opposition to slavery we call sectional; those who share only in the former we hail as national. The sole basis of the Albany Union party, which finds such favor with our sevenby-nine contemporary of Watertown, is the latter kind of opposition to slavery. We accordingly denounce the movement as sectional. It is sectional, exclusively sectional, maliciously sectional, destructively sectional. Its rank sectionalism will happily prove its own destruction. The national people of the North, who constitute the vast majority, will rise in their majesty and crush out the pestilent movement. They must do so, and they will. They are resolved to do it. We invoke them to enter upon the work. A more imperative or a more salutary one never appealed to patriots.

The Petersburg (Va.) Express gives a dark and terrible picture of the suffering that make a visit to their place, they are all running now exists in Virginia. Certainly that State away. Commodore Porter's mortar fleet were at anchor off Ship Island, 21st ult., awaiting orders to proceed to Mobile, to join the blockading squadron, preparatory to an attack upon Fort Morgan. I was anticipated that the conflict would be long and terrific, as the scene of operations would no cessarily be the open roadstead-which is thoroughly under the command of the Fort, and within range of its fire. No doubt, however, was expressed as to the final result, and the capture of the fort would be but a matter of time.

Eighty-five bales of cotton, valued at ten thousand dollars, belonging to James Trabue, of this city, were captured on Sunday last by a detachment of cavalry under Captain Milly, near Purdy, Tennessee. The cotton had been stored on the farm of a citizen named Riggins, Mr. R having been instructed to dispose of it. As Mr. Trabue's sympathies were with the rebels, it was thought best to confiscate the cotton, which was sent to the Tennessee river for shipment.

THEATRE-BENEFIT OF MISS DORA SHAW -The beautiful play of Ingomar and the very excellent drama of Asmodeus, or the Little Davil's Share, will be produced this evening, Miss Shaw performing in both pieces, and sustaining the character of Parthenia and Carlo, on the occasion of her benefit. Her friends have been accustomed to fill her houses on such occasions, and with such an excellent bill as she now presents, the custom will be adhered to, without doubt.

Mr. James Trabue, an old merchant of this city, who has but recently returned from the South, and who is supposed to entertertain rebel sympathies, was placed in the military prison yesterday upon his refusal to take the oath of allegiance. Mr. I. L. Hvatt, who returned from the South on Wednesday, appeared and took the oath voluntarily, and gave bond for its due ob-

THE GREAT BATTLE BEFORE RICHMOND-THE GREAT VICTORY OF OUR FORCES ON SUN

Sunday A. M , June 1, 1862. A battle before Richmond has at last put he test the rebel boast as to what they would with General McClellan's army when they should get it beyond the protection of the gunboats though the advantage of a sudden movement gainst the weakest point in our lines gave the nemy a temporary success, the final result has not been such as to afford encouragement to their isheartened and demoralized troops, or occasion ny fears as to our ultimate possession of the The attack commenced shortly before on o'clock on Saturday, on the left wing of the army, on the further or south tide of the Chickahominy, where the advance position was held by the division of Gen. Casey, much the weakest in the army, composed almost entirely of raw regiments, and reduced by disease to an effective force of some 6,000 men. of some 6,000 men.

THE POSITION HELD BY GEN, CASEY Was on the Williamsburg stage road, within six r seven miles of Richmond, and on a line so ex ended at the front that the troops required to maintain picket guirds of sufficient strength, ma-ing no slight draft on his weakened forces. The ight of the line was held by his first brigade, nder den. H. M. Naglee, as brave and vigilant n officer as is to be found in the army of the cotomac. Gen. Naglee's pickets extended across the railroad (running parallel to the Williams burg road, about a mile to the right) to near th sixth mile post from Richmond, and so on further the right and a little to the rear until within hort distance of a point on the Chickshominy where Gen. Sumner had thrown a bridge acros he stream, and was hourly expected to cross to omplete the line of pickets to the river.

The centre of Gen. Casey's position, held by he Second Brigade (Gen. Wassell's, formerly en. Keims'), extended from Gen. Naglee's line the left a short distance across the Williams arg road, where it joined the Third Brigad con. Palmer's), stretching some distance further to the left, and joining the lines of Gen. Couch who guarded the left flank, the main portion o his force being a short distance to the rear of Casey, on the Williamsburg road.

THE NATURE OF THE GROUND, The position occupied by the main body of thes wo divisions was a clearing of about one mile quarrounded on the left and front by a belt f forest, in which Gen. Casey's pickets were sta-oned. On the right a wooded swamp divided those. On the right a wooded swamp divided the clearing from a similar opening in the forest along the railroad, which was occupied by Gen. Naglee, with his brigade. Just beyond the woods to the front were similar clearings with woods of the front was the rabala lay concealed. eir further side, where the rebels lav conceale their further side, where the rebels lay conceal of, their pickets occupying the edge of the forests, and separated from our pickets by the width of the fields, forming a sort of neutral ground between the two armies, over which each kept close watch lest his neight or should take possession. The position of General Casey and other General the preferred step with the mode. rals, the nature of the ground, etc., will be made lear by reference to the map.

THE ENEMY RECONNOTTRING.

Step by step Gen. Casey has pressed on to this point, overcoming such opposition as met him, until it became evident that the rebels had resched the limit of their retreat, and further advance could not be ventured without the risk advance could not be ventured without the risk of a general engagement, for which the plans were not yet ripe. Our proximity to the rebels was evidently annoying to them, and on Thursday, and again on Friday, they made an unsuccessful attempt, with a force of a few hundred, to drive in the pickets and discover what mischief was plotting behind the belt of woods sheltering Gen. Casey from their view. Their attack was resolutely met by the pickets, who fell back on the reserves and held their ground, defeating the purpose of the enemy.

back on the reserves and held their ground, defeating the purpose of the enemy.

Meanwhile Gen. Casey was actively at work securing his position, a large force of men being busy, under the skilful direction of Lieut. B. W. West, of his staff, digging rife pits and felling trees for abattis. A similar line of defensive works had been commenced and partially completed at Gen. Casey's former position, at the Seven Pines, three miles further to the rear, and just back of these was a line of earthworks, constructed by Gen. Couch, and more carefully finished.

Falling in the two attempts to gather informa-Failing in the two attempts to gather informs on by forcing back General Casey's pickets, the resolved upon an advance in force against the left wing of the army, doubtless determined to drive it beyond the Chickahominy, should the opportunity offer, and put themselves in a position to turn General McClellan's left

THE ATTACK ON SATURDAY.

Shortly after noon the grand attack commenced, Gen. Casey's pickets being driven in all along the front, after a spirited resistance, the rebels advancing in force along three roads—the Williamsburg road to our left, the railroad in the centre, and the "Nine mile Road," as it is called, on the right. With his feeble division greatly weakened by extension, Gen. Casey had no back bone to epose to this sudden attack. But no thought of yielding his ground entered the mind of the old soldier, scarred with the wounds of Mexico and THE ATTACK ON SATURDAY. didier, scarred with the wounds of Mexico and sciplined to danger by a hundred fights. His cops were immediately formed into position, the three brigades maintaining their relative positions on the right, left, and centre, and as thorough preparations were made for resisting the attack as its suddenness would admit of. Regan's New fork battery was stationed just to the right of the Williamsburg road. Bates battery of Napo-eon guns further to the left across the road, and Fitch's battery three or four hundred yards to the rear, the last sending its shell over the heads of our troops at the enemy beyond. The fourth bat-tery was near the railroad further to the right.

tery was near the railroad further to the right.

The vigor with which the enemy pressed forward to the attack indicated the confidence of superior strength. A battalion of two regiments pressed against Gen. Naglee on the right, another fell on Gen. Wassell on the centre, and a third on Gen. Palmer on the left, pouring in a fire at once hot and heavy, and advancing with great resolution in face of the steady fire of canister and grape from the guns in front, and shell from those further to the rear, mowing down their ranks in all direc ions. The rebels had but little artillery, and were evidently disposed to make good the deficiency by pressing to close quarters with their superior force to bear down at once by weight of numbers the feeble skeleton regiments of three and four thousand men who composed the advanced division.

Most of Gen. Casey's troops were thrown forward to the edge of the woods in front of his po-ition, to meet the advance of the rebels, a few regiments being left behind the partially completed rifle-pits, a short distance to the rear. Thus a division, nearly new to warfare, was suddenly ex-cosed, in an open field, to the heaviest of fire, from an enemy covered to a considerable extent by the woods through which they were advanc-ng. Terribly the tempest raged, the air almost growing thick with musket ball; officer after ficer fell, or was borne from the field a wourded man; the men dropped by scores, and the usual number of weak-j inted ones were falling to the rear. But in spite of the rapid thinning of their ranks, the regiments generally held their ground until the enemy succeeded in rushing around on the left flack, and poured in an entilading fire from that direction generally held the right was that direction, against which the rifle-pits were no protection. The sixty rounds of ammunition with which they entered the fight were nearly exhausted and no more was at hand. ARRIVAL OF REINFORCEMENTS.

Meantime one of Gen. Couch's brigades, com manded by Gen. Abercrombie, was ordered up to the support of Gen. Naglee on the right, General Devens, of the same division, sustaining General Wassell on the centre, and Gen. Peck, with the Wassell on the centre, and Gen. Peck, with the remaining brigade, supporting Gen. Palmer on the left. When General Casey's troops were forced to give way, the rebels fell on these brigades of Couch's division, who disputed every inch of ground, until sustained by General Kearney, pressing up the Williamsburg road with reinforcements to meet them, supported by the division of General Hooker in his rear. Pressing rapidly forward, General Kearney advanced along the Williamsburg road to within a short distance of our original position, where he bivouacked for the night in front of the enemy.

It was along this Williamsburg road that the main attack was made, and here our troops were forced back for half a mile or more, before the arrival of Gen. Heintzleman's corps, the feeble ival of Gen. Heintzleman's corps, the feeble rigades of Casey's division, averaging less than ,000 men, being completely broken up, many, it ot most of the officers killed, wounded, or misnot most of the officers killed, wounded, or missing, and the privates scattered through the woods and along the road. Bravely and well did Gen. Casey do his duty, pressing on to the extreme front and cheerieg on his men, regardless of the storm of fire and hail that raged about him, cutting down his officers on all sides, but strangely escaping his own person. Bravely and well did most of his officers stand by him, until, one after another they were horse from the first deal of the storm of th another, they were borne from the field dead o wounded.

THE LOSS OF ARTILLERY.

Col. Bailey, Chief of Artillery, was shot early in the afternoon, the ball striking him in the head causing his death after a short period of insensibility. Mejor Van Vaultenberg, the second in command of the 1st New York artillery, was killed; Adjutant Wm. Ramsey wounded, while every battery but one lost its quota of men, and some of them lost nearly all their horses. Bates's battery of Napoleon guns—12-pound brass pieces—which was to the front, thus deprived of locomotion and stuck fast in the mud, was left behind THE LOSS OF ARTILLERY. notion and stuck fast in the mud, was left behind in the retirement of our troops, but not until Gen. Naglee had taken it upon himself to see that several of the pieces were spiked. In addition to possible, at the highest market price, and proceeds several of the pieces were spiked. In addition to this, the 3 inch Parrott gun of battery H was disabled by a shot, and fell into the hands of the enemy. The Pennsylvania reserve battery, of Couch's division, also lost one of their guns—these eight pieces of ordnance constituting our entire loss, so far as I could learn. We can better afford to spare the pieces than we can afford to have the rebell profit by their gain. They show every indication of being much in want of artillery, and the need is evidently stimulating their efforts to profit by the chances of war to possess themselves of our guns.

themselves of our guns.
GEN. SUMNER'S ADVANCE.

antime Gen. Sumner had succeeded advancing on the right to maintain our position there, where less ground had been lost. After several days of labor, Gen. Sumner had throw two bridges across the creek between Bottom's Bridge, the other a mile further up the stream. The lower of these was carried away during the heavy storm of Friday night, and Gen. Sumner was obliged to depend upon a single shaky structure for the pa sage of his troops, who nearly all, however, succeeded in crossing that night, the head of the column reaching the Nine mile Read along which the reaching were pressing our Road, along which the rebels, were pressing our troops, at about seven o'clock, holding the enemy in check for the night, preventing them from following up in that direction the advantage they had gained during the day.

THE FIGHT OF SUNDAY. Flushed with their seeming victory of Saturday rebels awoke with confidence on Sunday, to follow up their movements, sure of driving us this time to the Chickahominy and beyond. But they had made the unfortunate mistake of estimating the strength of our reserves by the weakness of our advance. Most bitterly did they pay for their mistake. Pressing eagerly forward with confence of victory, they were met by the trained croops of Heintzelman and Sumner, whose un-yielding columns checked their fierce assaults urning the tide of battle everywhere against then and forcing them at the point of the bayonet o oward Richmond. It was their turn now to break and run, and their losses of the Sabbath left them little cause for rejoicing over the trifing gain of Saturday. Terribly did the rebels suffer on of Saturday. Terribly did the rebels suffer on this, as well as the previous day, from the well-directed fire of our artillery, piling the ground with the slain. Terrible also to them were the frequent charges of our solid columns, pressing them back, step by step, to the last point of endurance, when they broke and run, ingloriously leaving behind them many of their men and officers, as well as privates, prisoners in our hands. The number of these it is not possible to ascertain, several days necessarily elapsing after every tain, several days necessarily elapsing after every engagement before a full inventory can be taken.

they occupied, but that is an earlier to the slightest commendation.

But a single line of general fortifications had been constructed, and these were actually less formidable than those thrown up by our forces last night, after occupying a new position. There were, besides this general line, occasional rifle pits, both outside and inside the works, but they could have been constructed by three relief details in each power.

tails in six hours.

The only fortifications really worthy the name were a few points where batteries were located, but these could not have resisted our Parrott and siege guns half an hour. Yet the positions occupied by the breastworks were capable of being strengthened so as to render them almost invul-nerable to a front attack, and no little difficulty would have been experienced in flanking the posi-tion, either on the right or left.

The works were on the brow of a ridge, considerably higher than any in the surrounding counerably higher than any in the surrounding country, and at the foot of it was a ravine, correspondingly deep. The zigzag course of the line gave the defenders the command of all the feasible approaches, and hundreds could have been mowed down at every step made by an assailing army, even from the imperfect earth banks which had been through it.

Had a fight occurred, it must have been decided by artillery, and in this respect we had the advantage both in number and calibre of our gans; but had they improved the advantages they possessed, and fortified as men who really intended to make a atubborn defence, this superiority might have been overcome.

Not enough of the Corinthians remained to welcome us to give me any idea of what the mass of the citizens are like. A few poor persons, the druggist referred to, and the Mayor's clerk, and two or three wealthy females, were all that were to be found. The poor were nearly starved, and were disposed to welcome any change, as it might bring relief, but could not add to their suffering. They walked curiously around, observing the movements of the soldiers, astonished at the comparatively handsome uniform they wore, and gratified that the fears they had felt had not been realized. The wealthy females looked from the windows of their mensions upon the Union troops, affecting the greatest scorn and disdain for the Yankeee, who viewed them in return rather in a spirit of pity than revenge.

IMPORTANT RECONNOISSANCE UP PEARL RIVER. The New York Sun's correspondent writes thus from New Orleans on the 22d ult.:

The steamer Westfield, Clifton, and Jackson, in The steamer Westfield, Clifton, and Jackson, in company with the Bachem, a gunboat doing surveying cuty, have made a reconnoissance up Pearl river, in search of rebel gunboats. The enemy have several well equipped boats, which have taken refuge since the evacuation of Fort Pike and the occupation of Lake Ponchartrain by our naval forces in the deep waters of Pearl river. That these boats are well manned and heavily armed, was shown by the resistance they made more than a month ago in an engagement with more than a month ago in an engagement with the New Orleans and Jackson at Pars Christian, Pearl river now farnishes the only hiding place. On account of the narrowness of the river, the three large Federal steamers could not ascend the stream more than a short distance from its mouth. Commander Renshaw of the Westfield and several officers from the Clifton and Jackson went on board the Sachem, and continued their progress up the river. They passed by several saw mills and small settlements, admiring the fertile fields and the fine country houses which occasionally came in sight. The most considerable places which they saw on the banks were the villages Pearl City and Pearlington. The inhabitants of the neighborhood flad in terror at the approach of the little steamer.

When they had arrived in the city of Gaines-villa which is a settlement of more importance.

tate fight. It was deemed imprudent to attempt further progress, as the Sachem is no match for more than one rebel boat at a time, and a fiset of them might have appeared steaming down the river at any moment. The river, although very deep for a long distance above Gsinesville, at this point is so narrow that the Sachem, in turning around, was obliged to run her bow into the reeds and bushes which line the banks. She islied her connects without further moleculation joined her consorts without further molestation, and, in company with them, returned to Ship

REVIVAL OF FOREIGN EMIGRATION. - A letter from Ireland, dated Dublin, May 7th, says: Notwithstanding the disheartening intelligence Notwithstanding the disheartening intelligence daily received from America, the peasantry are still emigrating to that country. On Tuesday a large number of people from Listowel and its neighborhood passed through Trales en route for America. They appeared a fine, healthylooking people, and likely to succeed in the labor market of the new world. The Western (Connaught) Star writes: "Already the excdus has commenced. Numbers of the peasantry leave for America by every packet, and a large proportion of the passages are paid on the other proportion of the passages are paid on the other side. We continue to receive numerous inquiries from small farmers and others enxious to proceed to Queensland or British Columbia. The applicants for free emigration are greatly on the in

Thus the great Irish exodus preceeds steadily through good report and through evil report, and it will evidently continue until the whole aboriginal race shall have passed away from the land of its nativity, to seek a happier desiray in other climes. In the midst of the war last summer we predicted that its effect results be testimales. climes. In the midst of the war last summer we predicted that its effect would be to stimulate the increase of the foreign immigration, because of the conspicuous bravery and good fortune of some of the Irish (flicers in the war, and of the scarcity of laborers all over the North since the large number required for the army was taken away. From the tenor of the above it will be seen that all the efforts used by the English Government to induce the Irish to go to the British colonies are of little avail against the superior attractions of the great republic, where the Irishman is on an equality with everybody else, may be his own landlord and master generally, and has not to contend with a great landed aristocracy.

I consider the troubles over to a great extent in this State, especially so in the most fertile, enlightened, and populous parts. The execution of the civil law is obstructed only by a few bands of ontlaws, whose dastiny would have been the scaffold and the penitentiary had not this rebellion occurred, which has opened a fine field for their base schemes. How naturally such characters become disloyal to a Government whose foundation stones are law and order. How natural it is for them to become joined to such an idol as a Southern Confederacy, whose very ideas of existence are antagonisms, destruction of law, and produce are antagonisms, destruction of law, and pro-

How to RAISE SHEEP PROFITABLY.-Well, as wool is up and a great many inquiriare made as to how to make the most wool and mutton, I will say that my plan would be to put from three to five good Cotswold bucks with one hundred ewes, and let them run with the ewes all the time. Let them bucks with one hundred ewes, ...

run with the ewes all the time. Let them have good blue grass, timothy, clover, or any other kind of grass; let them have plenty of good water and well salted. In addition I would say, about the last of November or first of December, early every morning, I would give them half an ear of corn each, the ears broken in two and scattered about on the grass so that they all can get to it, as they grass so that they all can get to it, as they grass so that they all can get to it, as they grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass so that they all can get to it, as they are grass and perform when and singular, the powers, duties, that State, all and singular, the powers, duties, that State, all and singular, the powers, duties, that State, all and singular, the powers of that State, all and singular, the powers of that State, all and singular, the powers of the private and functions pertaining to the office of Military Governor, including power to establish all necessary of the President and functions pertaining to the office of Military Governor, including power to establish all necessary of the president and functions pertaining to the office of Military Governor, including power to establish all necessary of the President and functions pertaining to the office of Military Governor, incl ing until spring. You will find that it will pay, both in wool and mutton. At the beginning of winter I would have shelter of ive them corn and shelter as the others have.

The sheep should be turned out of the lots they stay in of nights, into an adjoining blue grass pasture, and brought up every night. By having a few bells on them they will soon learn to come up of themselves to their lots. My plan for shelters would be to have a plank fence or post and rail, on the north side of the lots they stay in of nights. Then I would set up common rails ten or twelve feet long, one end on the ground and the other extending to the top of the fence; then take corn. stalk fodder, commence at the bottom and go four feet thick, and it will keep as well as shocks in the field, and will do to feed out in spring to cattle. I would say this plan fully carried out. would bring two litters of lambs every year, and would be as good as one litter each year. and I think you would have more twin lambs every time and be as apt to raise them and your sheep better from the care in keeping.

and they increase more every year, and last year the most of my flock had two litters, and they appear to do as well and grow as well as when they had but one litter a year. If I am correct, this will be a fast way of getting along with sheep. I would say that to commence, I would as soon have one half good healthy mountain ewes, as I find they have the earliest lambs. I think the Cotswold would be more likely to bring this result than any other, as I hey appear to do as well and grow as well as

Mr. Latham said that many of them were Mexicans and Mr. French used to say that he believed the manure which was thus deposited, "was as completely lost as if it had been dropped into the dock at the end of Long Wharf."

The soil in this case was rather cold, and for a considerable portion of the year, too, wet. The space at the bottoms of the furrows formed channels for draniage, and the water coming into immediate contact with the manure probably carried off its soluble elements.

APPLICATION OF MANURES.—Few questions have been more frequently discussed by farmers than the depth to which manure should be buried. Theory as well as practice should be buried. Theory as well as practice in relation to this point has varied widely. One man holds that the great point is to guard against the waste of manures by exposure to the atmosphere, and that there is no danger of loss by leaching. In a discussion at the State House last winter, one speaker went so far as to say that no fertilizing element could be carried by water through six inches of sand Others take the position that manures los nothing by exposure to the air, and that the Washington, June 4, P. > Heretofore we have had but little positive vidence in regard to these points-the advo cates of different theories and methods reason ing rather from general observation than from actual results of experience. As a means of settling some of the questions in which the subject is involved, the Massachusetts Society for Promoting Agriculture offered, in 1859 premiums for a series of experiments, the programme of which was published in many of the agricultural papers. The list has since been continued from year to year. The basis laid down for the experiments was this:
> Five lots of land of equal quantity and quality were to be selected; each of the five lots were to receive a deep ploughing, a shallow ploughing, and a harrowing; the only difference being that, on lot No. 1, the manure was to be a ploughed in deep which is any extended. enes being that, on lot No. 1, the manure was to be ploughed in deep—which is understood to mean as deep as it could be conveniently done by the plough; on lot No. 2, ploughed in shallow; on lot No. 3, buried only slightly—say by harrowing; on lot No. 4, left on the surface. An equal quantity and quality of manure was to be applied to each of these four lots, but lot No. 5 was to be left without any manure. Common been varied manure was to manure, Common barn-yard manure was to be used, and the different lots planted to Indian corn. The character of the weather, as to moisture, was to be noted.

The inference from these results is that manure slightly buried produced the best crops—the returns being better from the lots where the manure was either ploughed in shallow or harrowed in, than from those where it was ploughed in eep or left on the surface—though the results from the latter were better than from the deep burying. But it should be borne in mind that these are only the results of one season, and that the produce of the same lots must be compared in several succeeding years before we can assume that the advantages of either deep or shallow manuring are demonstrated. regard to the experiments, it is observed that "in order to have a completely satisfactory result, sufficient manure, say not less than ten or twelve cords of barn-yard manure, or its nough, at all events, to have the effects of it felt during the period of the trial." ASTROLOGY. Look Out! Good News for All! THE NEVER-FALLING MADAME BABEL SNELL is the best. She succeed when all others have failed. All who are in trouble; all who have been unfortunate; all whose fond hopes have been disappointed, crushed, and blasted by false promises and decelt—all fly to her for advice and satisfaction.

In love affairs she never fails. She shows you the likeness of your fears husband or wife. She guides the single to a beautiful and advice have been solicited. Innumerable instances, and the result has always used the means of securing a speedy and happy marriage. She is therefore a sure dependence.

and appy marriage one is inscribed a sine dependent. It well knewn to the public at large that she way the first and she is now the only person in this country who can show the likeness he reality, and who can give entire eatisfaction on all the concerns of life, which can be attested and proved by thousands, both married an single, who daily and eagerly visit her. To all in bust ness her advice is invainable. She can foretel, with the greatest certainty, the result of all commercial so business transactions. Madame Snell is a bona/id Astrologist that every one can depend upon. She is the greatest Astrologist of the nineteenth century. Som ladies may be a little bimld, though they need not feafor she practices nothing but what is reconclibile tphilosophers; in fact a single visit will eatisfy the moo restest Astrologist of the ninefeenth century. Some addes may be a little timid, though they need not fear, for she practices nothing but what is reconcliable to philosophers; in fact a single visit will exist y the nost hastidous of her respectability, moral restitude, and of the partty of her profession and practice. All interviews are strictly private and confidential; therefore come, one—come, all.
